

Exploring Latino Parent Attitudes Toward Science and Involvement in their Children's Science Education

Izzy De Leon and Julie F. Westerlund

Department of Biology, Texas State University

Hispanic/Latino population underrepresented in Science, Technology, Engineering, and Mathematics in 2015

Why is it important to have diversity in STEM Fields?

- Guards against groupthink and overconfidence
- Improves ability to solve problems and make predictions

Children's Interest in Science- Earlier the Better

- More likely to pursue science in college
- Children spend most of their time with parents and family
- Home experiences affect interest in science

Positive Influences on Children's Interest in Science

Factors that Decrease Parental Involvement
